WPXI-TV
 June 29, 2009

Click to Watch

  Dozens of people gave Congressman Jason Altmire some ideas on how to reform health care at a roundtable discussion today.

  Altmire is the co-chair of the New Democrat Healthcare Task Force and wanted to get ideas from experts in the healthcare field about how to fix problems with the system.

  "In the end, we all agree we need to reform our health care system," Altmire said. "We have to find a way to bring down the cost of healthcare. But we have different ideas on the solution. Having everyone in the same room at the same time is very helpful for me, because we got to hear from all sides."

  35 people attended today's round table.